Osvaldo Goytia is a senior intelligence research professional and threat analyst with over two decades of experience in leading multi-national intelligence research teams and developing innovative interdiction modalities for use by U.S. and foreign intelligence bureaus and law enforcement agencies.

Mr. Goytia has 23 years of broad-ranging experience in the operational intelligence disciplines and the leadership of complex strategic, tactical, and operational intelligence undertakings. His extensive experience in the management of complex projects and programs, foreign and domestic intelligence initiatives, and sensitive diplomatic interactions make Ozzy a uniquely qualified intelligence professional.

In both the United States and Mexico, he has led the coordination and integration of intelligence operatives, researchers, and analysts in partnership with federal, state, local, foreign, and private sector entities with regard to transnational criminal issues and major threat concerns. Ozzy builds and fosters profoundly effective working relationships at all levels of government, both domestic and foreign.

He has extensive management experience in both the government and private sectors; having been responsible for the development and implementation of complex projects and programs in support of bi-lateral government security threat analysis and threat reduction. He possesses a host of management talents, with a demonstrated ability to delegate authority, assess and oversee people and programs, identify patterns, and adapt to changing priorities.

With his unique ability to harness the innovative approaches of professional creatives and to blend group energies using an array of uncommonly effective team-building skills, Ozzy encourages pioneering ideas and approaches to problems, opportunities, and circumstances at all levels. Due to his demonstrated exceptional leadership, he was repeatedly selected to provide guidance and direction to unique teams of multi-disciplined intelligence specialists at the national, state, and local level.

Ozzy was responsible for leading the intelligence personnel of the DEA offices for a significant part of south-central Texas, including the South Texas High-Intensity Drug Trafficking Area (HIDTA). In this role, he developed outstanding bi-lateral working relationships with the senior leadership of both American and Mexican federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies and implemented innovative intelligence programs, enhancing the effectiveness and efficiency of thousands of internationally-significant investigations across North America.
